This pamphlet, which has been variously attributed to Anthony Benezet, Benjamin Franklin and Thomas Paine, was prepared by Samuel Wharton, as is attested by P. E. Du Simitière in his note-books preserved in the Library of Congress. It relates to a large tract of land within the limits of the present state of West Virginia, granted by the Indians in 1768 to certain traders, including Wharton, and called by them "Indiana." The present pamphlet is an enlargement of one published by Wharton in 1776, under title: View of the title to Indiana. cf. Boston athenæum, Catalogue of the Washington collection, 1897, p. 223-224.

[Wharton, Samuel, 1732–1800. View of the title to Indiana ... 1776. (Card 2)

At the treaty of Fort Stanwix in 1768, the chiefs of the Six nations ceded to the firm of Baynton, Wharton and Morgan, of Philadelphia, a large tract of land as indemnification for the loss of nearly £40,000 worth of goods destroyed by the Indians. The tract covered a large part of what is now the state of West Virginia, and to it the grantees gave the name of Indiana. Later, the plans for the development of this "Indiana" tract were merged into those of a larger undertaking, called the Walpole company, which proposed the founding of a western state under the name of "Vandalia". cf.
